

Design principles for users with cognitive disabilities

Accessibility, Accommodation & Adaptive Computer Technology (AAACT) Program

DO	DON'T
Let users have control of the contrast and colours on the screen.	Overload the user with too much info at once.
Align text to the left, keep a consistent layout and use a sans-serif font at a min 12pt.	Write large walls of complex text.
Keep content short, clear and simple.	use complicated words or figures of speech.
Use images and diagrams to support text and complex ideas.	Increase cognitive load by requiring users to recall info.
Use simple colours and coloured paper like yellow or pink.	Use bright and contrasting colours stimulation overload.
Use multi-modal materials like audio and video.	Rush users or set short time limits to complete tasks.
